

Abstract

The present invention provides a method for producing a high-quality capillary tube used in an electrophoresis apparatus in a safe and inexpensive manner.

A polymer coating on a capillary tube is converted into gas and removed through an oxidative reaction with oxygen radical resulting from ozone decomposition.